

BURRELL BACK IN BROWNSTOWN

Several Hundred People Gathered To Meet Train On Which He Arrived.

RELEASED TO HUNT BONDSMEN

Prepared to Face Trial and Punishment If It Comes.—Eight Indictments.

Hugh Burrell is back in Brownstown. In accordance with arrangements previously announced he left Oklahoma Thursday evening in charge of Attorney McAdam and arrived in Brownstown on No. 4 this morning. Accompanying him on the trip from the west as his attorney was A. N. Munden of Oklahoma, City, formerly of Seymour. He had been employed by some of Burrell's Oklahoma friends to come back with the prisoner and represent him in the proceedings at Brownstown. Capt. Applewhite, who had been given authority as a special officer to bring Burrell back, joined the party at St. Louis.

When the train arrived at the station at Ewing several hundred persons were there, some of them to meet the man whom they had known so well in the days of his prominence and influence and others attracted by curiosity. In spite of the humiliating circumstances, surrounding his return the ex-banker seemed to be glad to be back to his old home and eagerly grasped the hands of many of his friends and neighbors. Though he looked older and showed the effects of the strain and trouble of the past year or two he seemed in fairly good health. On the trip back he was not handcuffed, it being considered unnecessary by those having him in charge. So much confidence had Capt. Applewhite in Burrell's making no attempt to escape, that upon the arrival in Brownstown the prisoner was released to afford an opportunity for him to hunt bondsmen. It had been reported that friends would have a bond ready when he arrived but this proved to be a mistake. Judge Shea some time ago fixed the amount of the bond at $2,000.

It is the belief that Burrell will be able to find bondsmen sometime during the day. It was expected that he would be turned over to the sheriff this evening by Capt. Applewhite and a receipt for the prisoner taken from that official.

Burrell of course fought return to Indiana as long as possible but when he found there was no further hope of resisting extradition he accepted the situation cheerfully. Having been returned he is said to have no desire to escape but is prepared to accept whatever comes and is anxious to have the matter over. As he walked about Brownstown today he was the object of general attention. Notwithstanding his coming had been expected for some time it caused a considerable sensation in the county seat. Many stories of all kinds were told regarding his going away and his intentions now.

Whether he will be tried at the next term of court is not known yet. There are eight indictments against him, they being for larceny, embezzlement and forgery.

PARTICULARS RECEIVED

Regarding The Death of John McCormick In California.

The particulars of the accidental death of John McCormick, formerly of this county, near Needles, Cal. have been learned since the return of the widow a few days ago to Brownstown to make her home with her father, J. B. Thompson.

McCormick was a railroad conductor and the night of the accident he jumped off his train near Needles and ran forward and threw the switch to allow the train to enter it. After doing this it is supposed that he attempted to jump onto the pilot as he sometimes did and slipped and fell under the engine. That he was missing was not discovered until the train had gone some little distance and members of the crew then went back to look for him and were shocked at the evidences of the distressing fate he had met. The train had passed over his body crushing and mutilating it in a fearful manner. The body was in such condition that it was impossible to bring it back to this county for burial.

SEYMOUR BOYS LOST

And Girls Won In Basket Ball Games At Franklin.

In the championship basket ball game between Franklin and the local high school boys' teams last night at Franklin the victory went to Franklin. The score was 36 to 8. It was a good game but a sharp disappointment to the local team as the boys lost the district championship by it.

The girls' team from here put up a better game and won from Franklin by a score of 7 to 6.

When the Franklin teams played here recently the home boys lost and the girls won.

He will probably be able to return to work Monday.

PREPARATIONS

Will Soon Begin In County For Operation of New Law.

The county auditor must soon make preparations for the obtaining of supplies for the registration of the voters of Jackson county the first of which will be begun on Thursday, May 9. The second registration will be held in September and the third and last in October.

The board of county commissioners, which appoints the inspectors of registration for each precinct in the county and also designates the places where the registration shall take place has not taken up the question of appointments and selection of locations as yet. The matter will probably be considered at the March meeting of the board.

The registration act provides that if any changes are made in the precinct boundaries by the commissioners to be effective at the general election this year, they must not be made later than the March session and immediate notice must be given.

The inspectors of the registration will probably be appointed in April and the places of registration chosen at least fifteen days before May 9. The law provides that the room "shall not be one in which spirituous, vinous, malt or other intoxicating liquors are kept or sold." When the registration books are open the boards must remain at their posts from 5 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening and until 8 o'clock, if one voter each five minutes presents himself for enrollment after 6 o'clock.

Notice!

We are sorry that we have been unable to enroll all who desired to enter our night school, the crowded conditions making it impossible. KILLED BY THE SEVERE WINTER

Prominent Local Peach Grower Believes The Crop Has Been Ruined.

AND TREES PROBABLY KILLED

Views of B. W. Douglas On Preventing Injury to Peach Crop In Winter.

G. C. Borcharding has been examining the fruit and while it is early to say definitely he thinks the peach trees are killed by the severe winter. The peach crop has been killed and in all probability the trees have been killed also.

The California privet which is used for ornamental hedges has all been killed but it will probably grow from the roots again.

B. W. Douglas, former state entomologist, whose report for the fiscal year ended last September, will soon be ready for distribution, says, in a special article in the report, that peach growing can be carried on in Indiana with success from a commercial standpoint. He also believes that by proper spraying, peach buds can be saved from winter killing.

"The men who will be successful in peach growing in Indiana, or in any other state, from now on will be for the most part young men who are willing to adopt the new methods of peach culture and to apply modern methods throughout their work," writes Mr. Douglas. "Men who undertake this work in the proper spirit will have before them a field of tremendous profit, and, at the same time, they will find that they are engaged in a most delightful work. It is probable that the man who is looking for a peach orchard will ask, first of all, about the climate, and it is well that he should, for the peach is not a fruit that can be grown in such wide climatic conditions as the apple. During the last few years the peach crop in Indiana has been far more certain than the apple crop, and with proper care there is no reason why the peach orchard should not yield a crop practically every year.

"The chief difficulty in the southern part of the state, where peach growing was first attempted, has been that the winters have not been cold enough to retard the development of the peach bud, and as a result the buds started out too early in the spring and were caught by the spring frosts. Failures in the extreme northern part of the state have been due largely to severe weather in the winter. I would not undertake to grow peaches in any climate where the winter temperature often falls below 5 degrees below zero, although the peach has been known to withstand a temperature of 20 degrees below zero. This, however, is entirely too low a temperature for the commercial peach grower to feel comfortable about. Many peach crops have been lost in the central portion of the state by the warm weather in December starting the buds and developing them to a tender stage, so that they were readily killed by the severe weather later in the winter.

GOD'S LOVE

Summary of Sermon at German M. E. Church Friday Night.

Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. Isaiah 55:7.

The Wicked Man is the one whose lust has become his sin, that is the lust bringeth forth sin, and sin entered into bringeth forth death. Such a one it is told to forsake his ways, and if such a man forsake his ways, him Christ will receive. So it is, when a man is down and out and there is no room for him in this world, the Lord calls him to return unto the Lord.

The Unrighteous Man is one who sins in his thoughts—the man of society; the one with thoughts of unbelief, thoughts of rebellion against God; with thoughts of evil, thoughts of impenitence, etc., the selfrighteous man who sins in his own thoughts.

To repent: People will do something that is the hardest kind of a task for temporal gain, but they do not care to repent. Repentance simply means to turn away from sin and look to God in faith. Somehow man will do everything, but not repent. The greatest thing a man can do is to leave sin and turn unto the Lord.

The minister dwelt forcibly upon the fact that it is not only the open vile sinner that needs to repent, but there is impenitence in every heart. How many men and women in society would be offended if some one would suggest to them to give their life to God?

The Backslider: There are people who had pious mothers and fathers and were reared in a christian home and who had once in their lives given themselves to God, but after getting out into the world they lost the grace of God, and finally they come to the point when they hope to be received at the pearly gates, but they are backsliders.

God loves everyone, even those who are far off from the Lord, and how much more would He love those that return unto Him.

Will the Wicked Man, the Unrighteous Man, and the Backslider return unto the Lord? He will abundantly pardon.

There were five confessions at the close of the service last evening. The sermon treated of the certainty of Jesus' coming again. The fact that prophecies made years before His birth described in minute detail many incidents of His life, and that these were accurately fulfilled, is evidence that the prophecies of his coming again will be fulfilled. This is a time of unrest when many signs of the times meet the prophecies of conditions when Jesus comes again. But of the day and hour knoweth no man. It behooves everyone therefore to be ready for that coming. BE YE ALSO READY.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

WIFE—MOTHER.

The warden of a great penitentiary says:

"The first year a man is in the penitentiary his wife writes to him every day, then after a while every other day, then once a week, then every other week, until finally she ceases to write at all."

But—
"Whatever schedule the man's mother adopts at the beginning of the term for writing to him, she keeps it up. He may be shut up in prison twenty-five years, but his mother's letters will come to him as often as they did at first."

Further, he says:
"When a wife's letters cease to come we know she has forgotten or ceased to love him or is remarried. When a mother's letters quit coming we know she is dead."

Plain words. But, as Sancho Panza said, "Fine words butter no parsnips." The words are not cynical. They are true.

Other loves forget; mother love abides.
Occasionally there is a wife-like Mrs. Morse, the wife of the ex-king of New York, who stays by her husband year after year and works for his release, but the prison records show that the average wife soon grows cold and neglectful.

The love of the mother never fails, never tires. It remembers and clings forever.

The wife loves the husband for certain qualities. She idealizes these qualities. Disappointed, disillusioned, lacking the personal presence of the husband, her love starves to death because it has nothing to feed on.

Can you blame her? With her ideals all shattered, there is nothing left but pity and the memory of happier days. There is nothing to love.

It is one thing to love a man, quite another to love a convict.

And so, when society begins to turn against her because she is a convict's wife, unless she is an unusual woman she turns against her husband. She forgets because she wants to forget.

But the mother? She loves her boy not because of his qualities or his virtues, but because he is her son!

Hers is a love that will not let go.

It matters not to her what society says or does nor what may be her boy's misdoings. That boy may rob her of her property or break her heart. But she goes on loving.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

It isn't every fellow who can make a hit with the misses.

It's poor consolation for a hungry man to swallow his pride.

It doesn't require an earthquake to shake our faith in some people.

Of all human virtues the world is apt to regard success as the greatest.

Good intentions are the paving stones on which many a man slips up.

The people who pose as martyrs seem to get a heap of satisfaction out of it.

It's the unexpected that happens, but we generally bring it on ourselves.

Beauty is only skin deep, especially in the case of the girl who has no fortune.

Any lawyer will tell you that some people hate to take advice, even when they pay for it.

It is possible for a woman's head to be turned by flattery, even when she has a stiff neck.

It must make a fellow seem pretty small to feel as though he had been drawn through a knot hole.

When her child is in danger a woman will risk her life to protect it. No great act of heroism or risk of life is necessary to protect a child from croup. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and all danger is avoided. For sale by all dealers.

SATURDAY NIGHT SERMONS

BY
REV. SAMUEL W. PURVIS, D.D.

THE UNCONSCIOUS HAND.

Text. "What is that in thine hand? and he said, A rod."—Exodus iv. 2.

Poor Moses! Stands leaning on his shepherd's staff, weighing himself in the balance. God's just called him to lead millions of slaves from bondage. He thinks of his shepherd's garb and rough speech. "Who am I?" he asks. What's the difference? "They will not hearken to my voice." Well, what if they do not. God himself has spoken to men and they would not listen. Moses soliloquizes, "This is a stupendous undertaking. The man who is to lead this people ought to be a wise and ready man. To persuade this people he ought to be above all a fluent speaker." He is startled by God saying, "What is that in thy hand?" Why only a rod, a stick cut from a common bush, his shepherd's crook, carried so long he's unconscious of its being in his hand. "What has that to do with the question of leading out 3,000,000 slaves?" "Cast the rod upon the ground." He obeys, and behold, that despised stick, so commonplace to Moses, became a writhing, twisting serpent. When Moses saw its poisonous fangs and its vicious little eyes he fled in terror. God's touch can make a fearful and wonderful thing out of a contemptible stick. When God put the stick back in Moses' hand Moses had a new respect for that common thing, and had learned a lesson that every Christian ought to learn.

God Touched Powers.

When God touches human powers they can no longer be limited by human measurements. From that time they are under the law of God's omnipotence, just like common things taking on higher value by passing through skilled human hands. Out in the field lies lump of clay. Cannot give shade like a tree, perfume like a flower, refreshment like a fruit—just a mass of soil clay. The potter throws it on wheel, turns it to shape, puts it in fire; it comes forth a thing of beauty, a $10,000 vase for the gaze of multitudes at the exposition. A few years ago was a child, deaf, dumb and blind. "If the poor little thing could only die," said the world. A young woman, Miss Sullivan, said, "Let me try." The child could not see her, hear her nor speak to her. Then commenced a long, tedious process. It's a marvelous story. But the child grew up, prepared for and entered Radcliffe college, mastered English, French, German, Latin and Greek. She can converse freely, but cannot hear what she is saying. She knows what you are saying by putting her finger tips to your lips. Publishers are willing to pay Helen Keller $100 a page for anything she will write. Are you getting it, brother? If under touch of human hands a mass of soil clay becomes thing of beauty and mass of human clay becomes a happy intellectual soul, can we wonder when God touches men and things this power is multiplied a thousandfold?

Conditions of God Success.

The same conditions for human clay as for soil clay—simply self surrender and obedience. Leave yourself in God's hands. Lay aside your own estimate of power and weakness, success and failure. Work when and where he bids you. Use the tools he gives, no matter how ridiculously insufficient they may seem. By the time Moses had brought plagues on Egypt, seen Red sea open up a dry path, water gush from bare rock, he had different idea of God's tools. One thing that keeps us from using the little things about us that God bids us use is our worship of size. We think nothing can be of much importance unless it is big. Travelers tell of highest mountain, longest tunnel, biggest glacier and swear by Jupiter because it's the largest planet. Men are all for quantity, God for quality. We seldom praise a humble man. Physical, social and political bignesses are the idols before which we bow. But the sun is mirrored in a dewdrop as well as in the ocean. Every stem is a laboratory, every blade of grass a lightning conductor.

Great Doors—Small Hinges.

While we are despising the day of small things, obscuring perfection in our haste for bigness, forgetting that the Almighty may be speaking in a still small voice, the Scriptures are constantly reminding us that we are wrong. A dove is the earliest weather bureau. A look back turns a woman into a saint. The little images nearly cost Rachel her life. A sister's forethought saved Moses to the world. A giant was slain with a pebble. A mustard seed typifies the kingdom of God. A lad furnishes the means for feeding a multitude. A mite is the measure of all giving. A lily teaches divine providence. "What is that in thine hand, Moses?" "A simple rod," Gideon? A soldier's sword, Shamgar? An ox goad, David? A shepherd's sling, Love woman? A flask of oil, Mary? A vase of spikenard, Poor widow? Only two mites, Dorcas? A needle. Say, friend, what is that in thine hand? A broom? A trowel? A pen? Wealth? Is it only a kindly grasp? While you are grumbling at your lack of opportunity, lack of preparation, lack of tools, weighing your ability or lack of ability, God is asking you, "What is that in thine hand?" Give it to him by using it. Let him multiply it by his own omnipotent arithmetic that from one kernel of corn produces a hundredfold.

OFFICERS LOSE EASY JOBS

Twenty-Two of Them Are Detached from Their Soft Places in the War Department.

"Fried loose" was the cry about the war department the other day when it became known that twenty-two officers had been ordered detached from as many comfortable berths at the department and into field service after four or more years of Washington life.

The officers detached range in rank from brigadier-general to captain. Some of them have been serving in Washington for more than six years and most of them had begun to feel secure against disturbance in their positions for as many more. Consequently the order of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood of the general staff, came as a great surprise to most of the officers concerned. It was no surprise to those attached to the general staff as the law requires that they shall not serve on that corps more than four years consecutively.

The explanation is that General Wood has come to the conclusion that officers are liable to become stale on their jobs after a few years of "chair work," and that it will be for the best interests of the service that they be sent out to do some soldiering.

Those who will take part in the exodus are: Brig.-Gen. W. W. Wother- spoon, president of the Army War college, who will change places with Brig.-Gen. A. L. Mills, commanding the Department of the Gulf at Atlanta, Ga.; Maj. Johnson Hagood, general staff; Capt. Charles D. Rhodes, Twenty-fourth infantry; Capt. Stanley D. Embick, general staff; Maj. P. F. Straub, general staff; Maj. R. E. Callan, coast artillery; Capt. P. P. Bishop, coast artillery; Capt. J. A. Logan, subsistence department; Lieut.-Col. John T. Knight, quartermaster's department; Lieut.-Col. D. S. Stanley, quartermaster's department; Maj. F. B. Cheatham, quartermaster's department; Maj. A. B. Brewster, inspector-general; Lieut.-Col. J. T. Thompson, ordnance department; Maj. J. H. Rice, ordnance department; Lieut.-Col. G. H. Downey, pay department; Lieut.-Col. W. D. McCaw, medical department; Maj. F. S. Russell, medical department; Col. P. P. McCain, adjutant-general's department; Lieut.-Col. Benjamin Alford, adjutant-general's department, and Lieut.-Col. J. B. Porter, judge advocate.

WASHINGTON'S CITY COUNCIL

Capital is Governed by Congress, Which is Also Its Mayor, but Trouble Comes With Snow.

Washington is governed by congress which is its mayor and its city council. In some ways Washington is well governed. In other ways it is not. Every winter there is a long-drawn-out row in the senate, and sometimes in the house, over the matter of the law to force the people to remove the snow from the sidewalks in front of their residences. The law never has passed. Once it was upon the District statute books, but it was wiped out never apparently to be restored.

The result is that after a storm Washington sidewalks are in a fearful state. Only the most public-spirited citizens clean their sidewalks. The rest of the people wade through their own snow and their neighbors' snow and prefer the discomfort of it all to the two minutes' exertion which it would take to shovel the snow from their walks.

Years ago there was a law intended to compel citizens to keep their sidewalks free from snow and ice. Many people were fined for disobedience of the law. Finally one man was arrested for allowing the snow to remain on the sidewalk in front of some vacant property he owned. He fought the case, and that part of the law which applied to vacant property was declared unconstitutional, and for some reason the whole law was wiped off the books.

As a result the president, foreign ambassadors, Supreme court justices, senators and representatives and the common people tramp through snow halfway up to their knees.

An Odorous Army Incident.

Gen. Leonard Wood did not get an education at West Point costing the government several thousand dollars. His was dug out on Cape Cod and added to after he became a contract surgeon in the army.

It is very unusual to interpose any objection when an officer offers his resignation. In this case General Wood is quoted as taking the position that Lieutenant Rumbough has been educated at the expense of the government and should not leave the service so soon.

Telephone for St. Bernard Pass.

The telephone may not be a romantic addition to the Pass of St. Bernard, but it is a useful one. The Cantine de Proz is now connected by wire with the Great St. Bernard Hospice. In winter, whenever a solitary wayfarer passes the cantine in the direction of Italy, the news of his passing is telephoned to the hospice. If he has not put in an appearance there at the time when he might reasonably be expected, one of the monks, accompanied by a dog, goes out in search of him. As a result of this system of warning, it seldom happens that any traveler dies in the snow nowadays when attempting to cross this inclement pass.

HIS TROUBLE NOT OF HEART

Real Facts In Regard To F. R. Huffman's Illness. Relief Obtained By Curing His Stomach Ailments.

Waynesville, N. C.—Mr. F. R. Huffman, of this city, says: "I suffered dreadfully with what I thought was heart trouble, and tried various medicines in vain.

After other remedies had failed, Thedford's Black-Draught restored me to health. I would not feel safe without Black-Draught in the house. I consider it worth its weight in gold.

It cured my indigestion, and by this means I was restored to health. I can not express my gratitude for its benefits."

Good health depends on the condition of your digestion. Poor digestion and good health do not go together.

Thedford's Black-Draught will thoroughly cleanse and set in order your digestive system.

It has done this for others, during the past 70 years, and is today the most popular vegetable liver remedy on the market. Try it.

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

From time immemorial, sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost everyone knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and falling hair, and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this sort, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is turning gray or coming out, don't delay, but get a bottle of this remedy to-day, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Andrews Drug Co.

FITTING HONORS TO OLD M. QUAD

Charles B. Lewis Celebrates
Seventieth Birthday.

THE GANG WAS ALL THERE

If Not in Actual Presence, at Least in Spirit, For the Whole Bunch of American Humorists Took Pleasure in Paying Their Literary Compliments to the Man Whom They Cheerfully Acknowledge as Dean.

New York, Feb. 17.—Charles B. Lewis, otherwise known as "M. Quad," sponsor of Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner of the Lime Kiln Club, the Arizona Kicker, Old Pap Hinkham of Jericho Postoffice, and the German cobbler, has just celebrated his 70th birthday and was the bashful victim of a birthday party in the McClure newspaper syndicate offices. Through this syndicate he has distributed in the last twenty years an average of 10,000 words a week about the doings of his folks.

There was punch in a bowl and after everyone had not lacked his equal share of the bowl in wishing M. Quad many years more for himself and his people, Miss Florence Lynch, blonde and blushing, tripped up and placed a laurel crown about the silvered brows of the funny man. Some words were said to the effect that she crowned him the dean of American humorists, and nobody denied them.

When all had grinned their satisfaction at this delightful expression of good will, Robert McClure presented M. Quad with a book bound in red leather and gold in which were illuminated appreciations from other humorists and artists, telling how they had attained their growth on the Lime Kiln Club. Many of them said they would have been poets or second-story men, but for their wide reading of M. Quad, and they all ranked him ahead of Matthew Arnold.

Among those who contributed to the book were George Ade, Ellis P. Butler, Irvin S. Cobb, Strickland Gillilan, Walt Mason of Emporia, Paul West, Wallace Irwin, Carleton G. Garretson, S. E. Kiser, Sam Blythe, Tom Masson of the staff of the Detroit Free Press, where M. Quad started and continued for twenty-two years; John S. Phillips, Don C. Seltz, E. Prentiss Bailey of the Utica Observer; Irving Bacheller, Henry L. Stoddard and Thomas L.

James, banker, while sketches were added by Gelett Burgess, "Zim," Marshall P. Wilder, Walt McDougall, R. F. Outcault, Carl A. Schultze, A. D. Reed, Ed Carey, who illuminates the M. Quad publications; Foster Pollett, J. R. Bray, E. W. Kemble and C. T. Anderson.

George Ade said in his letter, reminiscing: "One of my earliest recollections is that of sprawling on the floor with the Free Press in front of me, giggling over the Lime Kiln Club. Little did I think that some day I might grow up and try to write the same kind of stuff. We are glad to have you with us this year. You are a marvel for long distance and high speed."

Then M. Quad made a husky speech: "My friends, I'm glad if I have done anything in my long life to make any body happier, as you say. I never got rich for the reason that I was not smart enough to steal more than $5 at a time. But I have always considered myself blessed because I was fortunate to get a few good friends and keep them. That is about the best thing in life—to have a few good friends and keep them."

Then M. Quad tucked the red book under his arm and started for home.

CAUSED SENSATION

Insurance Trust Accused of Attempted Bribery by Kentucky Solon.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 17.—Making the charge that the so-called insurance trust of America, through its representatives, had attempted to bribe him to prevent the house from passing his measure providing for the regulation by a commission of life insurance companies operating in Kentucky, Representative Harry J. Meyers of Covington caused a sensation in the legislature. He made the charge after numerous efforts had been made to block a vote on the bill having it recommitment. He mentioned a Kentucky company as having been most persistent in maintaining a lobby to defeat the proposed legislation.

FOUND HIM GUILTY

Auto Driver Convicted of Manslaughter For Running Down Street Sweeper.

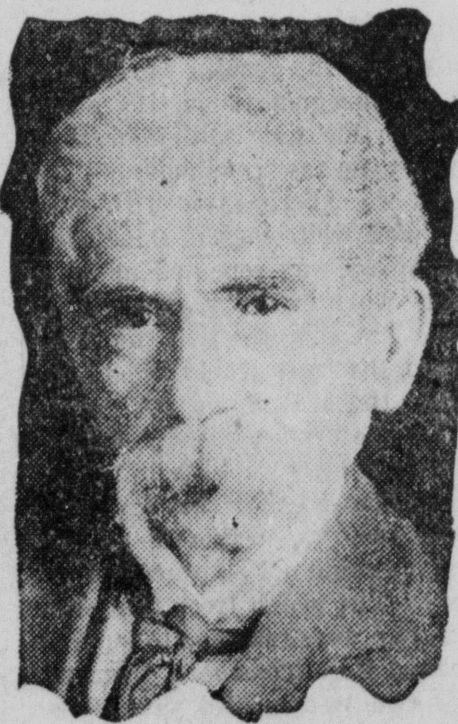

Providence, R. I., Feb. 17.—Herman K. Wagner was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in the superior court. It is the first and only case ever brought to trial before a jury in Rhode Island under an indictment charging manslaughter as the result of killing through reckless driving of an automobile. Wagner struck and killed Gilbert Mallette, a city street sweeper.

BOLD PAIR OPERATE IN NORTHERN INDIANA

Even an Officer of Detective Association Taken In.

Goshen, Ind., Feb. 17.—A woman burglar, who with a male companion, robbed the S. C. Leeper hardware store in Syracuse of $125 in money, and guns, silverware and cutlery worth $500, is being sought by sheriffs of seven counties. The woman obtained a livery rig in Goshen and the couple was seen leaving Syracuse about 2 o'clock in the morning by the night watchman. The two drove the livery horse until it fell near Baintertown. They then induced a farmer to drive them to Goshen, where they caught the 5 o'clock Lake Shore train west.

The robbery was discovered at 6:30 a. m. by the merchant, and the pursuit began. According to the liveryman the woman was handsomely and stylishly dressed. The thieves carried hand grips. The farmer at whose home they asked aid is an officer of the horsethief detective association.

WILL NOT GIVE UP THE LETTER

Schiff Defies State's Demand in Brandt Case.

THE CASE IS NARROWING DOWN

Alleged Conspiracy to Railroad Young Man to Prison Has Reached Point Where Sensational Developments Involving Household of New York Millionaire May Come at Any Time, a Mysterious Letter Being the Cause.

New York, Feb. 17.—A letter that was taken from Folke E. Brandt's room in East Forty-second street the night Brandt was arrested, is in the possession of Mortimer L. Schiff. Schiff's advisers have informed the district attorney that he will go to any extremity rather than surrender this letter. The district attorney had demanded it.

Only four of Brandt's letter written to him, or received by him, are in existence, although nineteen were removed from his room by Detective Sergeants Joseph D. Wooldridge and John Taylor and Pinkerton Detective John Rogers. The four that have escaped destruction appear to the district attorney to have most direct bearing on the prosecution that sent the man to prison to serve thirty years. Fifteen, so far as the district attorney can learn, went the way of unclaimed property in the police department.

The letter which Mr. Schiff desires to retain was written, though not mailed, to a member of Schiff's household. The others that have survived were written to Brandt by employees of Schiff. Although written by servants to a servant, they contained a note of obsequiousness a strain of flattery and an evident desire to ingratiate. These letters were in the hands of Howard S. Gans, Schiff's counsel in the Brandt prosecution, until they were turned over to Delancy Nicoll, who is now acting for Mr. Schiff as well as for Gans.

The district attorney is informed that the four letters were separated from the other documents found in Brandt's room and secretly removed by Pinkerton Detective Rogers, who was in the employ of Mr. Schiff. Rogers accompanied Detective Sergeants Wooldridge and Taylor when they went to arrest Brandt on Schiff's delayed complaint that Brandt had assaulted him and burglarized his house. Rogers had no authority to lay a finger on Brandt's property, but it is known that while he was in Brandt's room with Wooldridge and Taylor he managed to possess himself of the four letters that now interest the district attorney. Taylor went before the grand jury that is investigating whether Brandt was the victim of a conspiracy when he was sentenced to thirty years in state's prison by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky and swore that he turned over to the lieutenant in charge of the detective bureau the night Brandt was arrested all of the letters and effects that Inspector McLaughlin told him to take from Brandt's room. The district attorney, carefully balancing the situation, said that either Taylor committed perjury, or Rogers, the Pinkerton man, was guilty of grand larceny.

Thoroughly conversant now with what took place the night Brandt was taken into custody, Mr. Whitman was able to speak frankly with Schiff's attorney. Holding out no promises whatever, Whitman asked that the letters be placed in his hands. Mr. Schiff's counsel was willing to hand over three letters, but he balked on the fourth.

FEUD MURDERS

Two More Added to Long List of Breathitt Vendetta Victims.

Jackson, Ky., Feb. 17.—Reports from Buckhorn tell of the assassination of "Big John" Davidson and Levi Johnson. Both men were shot to death while passing a house across the line from Breathitt in Perry county. Davidson was tried recently for killing John Abner, but was acquitted. Revenge of clansmen is supposed to have brought his death, while Johnson was killed because he happened to be in Davidson's company.

Field For Operations.

New York, Feb. 17.—A John street diamond dealer was blackjacked and robbed of $10,000 worth of unset diamonds in Thirty-fifth street just east of Sixth avenue, last evening, by men who jumped out of an auto and, after the robbery, made a getaway. This is the third highway robbery in New York streets within a week in which an auto has been used by the highwaymen.

School Crowded.

The department for girls at the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth at Fort Wayne is overcrowded and the institution will be able to accept girls of school age only as vacancies occur, by death or removal, until additional facilities are given by the Legislature, according to the annual report from the school which is ready for the printer.

The completion of the cottage for adults has permitted receiving a number of that character of inmates and the population of the school has gained materially because of that fact the report declares. The enrollment of the institution at the time the report is dated, Sept. 30, 1911, was 1,225, and on the same date last year the number was 1,143, the gain for the year being eighty-two. Sixty-one applications for admission were pending at that time, the majority being girls under 16 years old.

The report commends the law passed by the 1911 Legislature which relieved the institution of the care of epileptic children and provided for a maintenance fee for adult females when able to pay.

Paris.—A striking case of heroism by a domestic servant, who sacrificed her life for her employers' children, has just occurred here.

The heroine was Mme. Jeanne Mounot, aged 64, who acted as servant to a family in the Rue Brunel. During the absence of her master and mistress Jeanne Mounot lit a small lamp in order to put the three children to bed, and accidentally set fire to her clothing. The children were playing close by. In order not to frighten them and to prevent them approaching her and themselves setting fire to their clothing, the woman, with great sangfroid, refrained from calling for help. "It's nothing," she said to the eldest child, who looked on in terror as the flames enveloped her, "but don't come near me."

The children obeyed and the courageous woman seized a blanket and wrapped herself in it, succeeding in putting out the flames. Then, although her hands and body were terribly burned, with almost superhuman courage she put the three children to bed one by one and got them to sleep.

It was only then that she thought of seeking assistance. She had just reached the door of the apartment when she fell in a faint, without having uttered a cry. Her master and mistress found her lying there on their return. She was immediately removed to the Beaujon hospital, where it was found that she was terribly burned, and she died during the night.

Jeanne Mounot had been acquainted with Mme. Dolipowski, her mistress, since the latter was a little girl, and she was treated by M. and Mme. Dolipowski more as a member of the family than as a servant.

HAS LOST HUMAN HEADS

University of Pennsylvania Museum Has 200-Year-Old Smoked Heads.

Chickasha, Okla.—Prof. George B. Gordon, director of the University of Pennsylvania museum, has just received, through his agents in London, three human heads, which, although preserving the full contour of the features, are approximately 200 years old. They are the grotesquely tattooed heads of leaders of the ancient Maori of New Zealand, who were first discovered in 1770 by the famous explorer, Capt. James Cook.

Professor Gordon explained that the heads were preserved by a process of smoking them and were kept for the same reasons that Caucasians keep pictures of their ancestors. The heads are not gruesome or revolting, even to the most sensitive and highly imaginative person.

The faces are smooth and do not suggest human flesh any more than the face of a wax doll. The eyes are closed and the hair is well preserved. The entire face is covered with fanciful though symmetrical figures, tattooed during life. The Maori are the only tribe of the entire Polynesian race who preserved their faces as did the Maori.

According to Dr. Gordon, the preserved heads are very rare, there being only two or three known to be in existence besides the Robley collection at Columbia university, which contains nearly a score.—North American.

NO LAW TO PROTECT FLAG

General Wood Says Stars and Stripes Should Always Be Suspended From Line or a Staff.

Washington.—Recent charges and denials of abuse and misuse of the American flag have developed the fact that there is no national statute making such acts punishable. Several states are said to have severe laws on the subject and the war department officials are hopeful that agitation will lead legislatures of other states to adopt similar laws.

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, contends that the national ensign should never be used as a table covering or be tacked up as drapery, but that it should always be suspended from a line or staff or hung against the wall. It is a common practice on shipboard to spread the flag over the chaplain's table or desk during services. This practice is condemned in some quarters as a misuse of the flag.

An attempt probably will be made to obtain national legislation on this subject, but it is said that so many private interests would be adversely affected that the success of the attempt is doubtful.

HORSE THIEF POOR TRADER

Brunch Buster Keeps on Swapping Animals Till He Gets an Un-tradable Nag.

Altoona, Pa.—Charged with stealing a valuable pony from John D. Bloomhardt of this city over a year ago, Charles Foust, a brunch buster, was arrested at South Park, where he was working in the coal mines.

Foust was employed to break ponies by Bloomhardt, and one day drove off with the best one in the lot. He told the police that he traded it off for a horse, getting something to boot each time.

It is supposed that he kept on trading for a poorer animal each time until at last he got a horse he could hardly give away.

IDEAS FOR HOME BUILDERS

BY

WM. A. RADFORD.

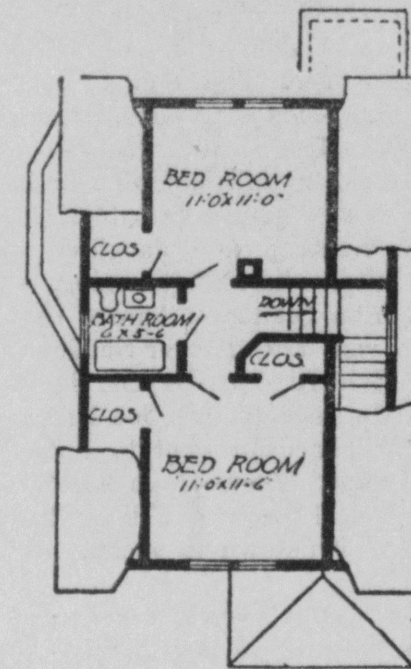

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Did you ever get married, and start housekeeping in a neat little cottage that you could dress to your liking, making it look comfortable and cozy? If have never had that pleasure, you will regret your misfortune as soon as you study the possibilities of the little house design here shown, unless you already have something along this line in prospect.

The time was, when life in a cottage meant discomfort, confinement to two or three rooms that were awkward, badly arranged, and barelooking, in spite of every effort to make them homelike. There was a shivery bedroom opening off the kitchen, and a squeaky, boxed-in stairway which led to the unfinished or rough-plastered loft where the other sleeping quarters were found. But women demanded so many changes for the better in small houses, that architects have wonderfully improved their designs for homes of this class in recent years. They have found out how to put lumber and other building materials together to form very pretty five-room and six-room houses—a thing they considered unworthy of their time and ingenuity not many years ago.

The fact is, it is much more difficult to make a good, little house than to make a good, satisfactory, large house. The planning of a small house runs into a thousand difficulties; in

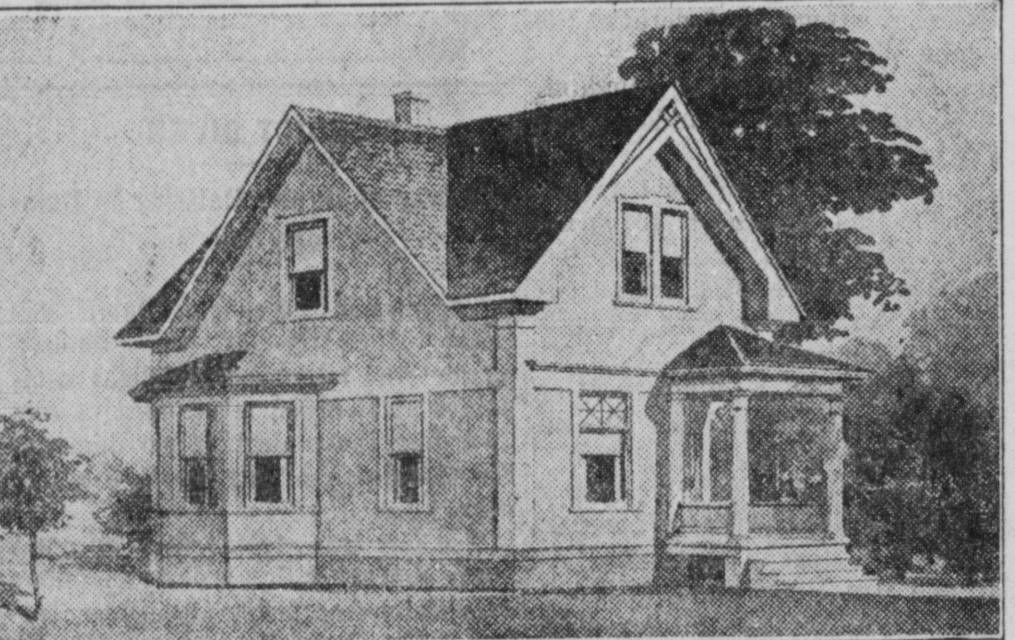

Nobody wants a "parlor" any more; parlors are out of date. We want a large, pleasant "living room" that we can decorate with pearl-tinted wall and ceiling decorations, and furnish with good, comfortable, every-day conveniences which are good to see and not too good to use. We want a big couch or davenport, with at least a dozen pillows of appropriate sizes, covered with soft material in colors to match the other decorations. We want a Morris chair by the window, and, in one corner, shelves containing our favorite books. We like to decorate the walls with pictures that smile back our ideas of cheerfulness. In this room we receive our friends, and enjoy our evenings together when at home alone.

We go upstairs from the front hall fact, architects are checkmated about every third move when they try to make a thousand-dollar cottage cater to the refined and cultivated tastes of girls who have been accustomed to good homes.

Formerly love in a cottage meant happiness during warm weather only. At the approach of fall it was necessary to go and visit mamma or hunt boarding house. The sympathy of friends followed the young turtle doves into their little suburban seclusion, because their friends knew that inconvenience lurked in every corner of the little habitation of four walls, bare and utterly devoid of artistic beauty, and as innocent of modern conveniences as the cabins of our forefathers, without their redeeming big, wood-burning fireplaces. But the old-time sympathy has changed to new-time envy. The girl with a five-room modern cottage now has as much comfort, less worry, and more time for social duties and fancy work, than the more ambitious young lady who marries into an eight or ten-room house with the usual responsibilities.

For about $1,100 this cozy little combination of three rooms downstairs and two bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs can be built in almost any of our smaller cities or towns. The living room, dining-room and kitchen are perfect in arrangement. They are large enough for two at all times, with room for occasional company; and they are light and airy, and can be made very pretty.

SAYS DON'T WED ORIENTAL

Princess Hassan Points Out Fatal Mistake After Five Years' Trial.

New York.—"Never marry an Oriental—it's a fatal mistake," said the beautiful Princess Hassan, who, before her marriage to a cousin of the khedive of Egypt, was Miss Ola Humphrey of California, an actress. After five years' absence from her native land, the princess has arrived from her home in London and she will remain a few days at the Knickerbocker before going to join her mother in Oakland, Cal.

The princess spoke feelingly and somewhat knowingly on the subject of marriages between members of the Oriental and Occidental nations, for her life as a member of the khedive's immediate family was one that was far from romantic and happy.

"To begin with," she said, "an American girl is far too independently brought up and too spoiled by her own countrymen to be dominated in the manner an Oriental expects his wife to be. You see, my meeting with the Prince Hassan was so romantic and I was so overpowered by his great manner and his magnificence that I married him impulsively after two months' courtship.

"I have always been impulsive and I shall always be so. My marriage with Prince Hassan should have taken some of that quality out of me, but it hasn't.

"I know, however, enough to give advice to other American girls and the advice is never to marry people of Oriental origin or with Oriental strains in the blood. They can never understand each other and the woman will be the one who suffers."

The princess was wonderfully attired in a new Parisian frock and ermine toque trimmed with sweeping aigrettes.

The skirt of the frock, by the way, was made simply of a wide border of lace over nothing but chiffon. No petticoats were worn underneath.

"All the frocks are made in that fashion in Paris and London now, and no petticoats are worn," she added.

CHILD GENIUS WAS A FAKE

But the Wonderful Youngster Stirred All Vienna—Marvelous Verse.

Vienna.—The alleged fake discovery of a child genius is causing a controversy here. Herr Hupfer, who writes on politics, recently brought back from near Bozen, in the South Tyrol, a "child George Sand." The child, Anna Schafer, is only nine years old, but could write marvelous verse in both German and Italian. Italian, it was explained, she had learned owing to Bozen being near the German-Italian language frontier, where Italia Irredenta begins. Hupfer brought the child to Innsbruck and later to Vienna, where she was shown to learned men, who examined with bewilderment her hideously scrawled but wonderfully mature and finished verse. Newspapers published her "My Stars" and "My Heaven" with notes of exclamation. A lady Maecenas named Gaspard got interested in little Anna's future and promised to give her a good education.

But when separated from Herr Hupfer and planted on a farm near Pressburg, the child's genius seemed to evaporate. She produced no fresh poems and showed rather less than ordinary intelligence. Her disgusted patron sent her back to Bozen, where her father is a millers' assistant.

The finder of the genius is now charged with having concocted a literary hoax in order to revenge himself on one of the learned men with whom he had had a quarrel. He denies this charge and pleads that someone else hoaxed him. Anna has been unable to throw any light on the mystery, and when asked whether she wrote the poems answered yes, but refuses to explain whether this refers to the original composing of them or only to her scrawled copies.

HAND IS 6,000 YEARS OLD

Once an Egyptian Princess, but Now Prized Property of Painter of Venice.

Milan.—Much excitement has been occasioned in Venice over the recent discovery of a human hand during dredging operations in the Giudecca canal. Experts declared that the hand, which was found hermetically sealed in a wooden box, had belonged to a female child eight or ten years old.

The police, convinced that they had to do with a foul crime, were busy trying to trace the murderous mutilator, when the renowned oriental painter, Signor Mainella, who has resided many years in the Venetian lagoons, narrated how a wealthy Egyptian family, wishing to give him a souvenir of his sojourn in their native land, presented him with what they described as the mummified hand of an Egyptian princess, who had lived 6,000 years ago. Signor Mainella preserved the relic religiously for a decade or more, when observing that the hand showed signs of decomposition, he instructed his valet to nail it securely in a box and threw it into the canal, where it has recently turned up again.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Elam Harnish, known all through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a friendly crowd of miners at the Circle City Tivoli. He is a general favorite, a hero and a pioneer in the new gold fields. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine but wins the mail contract of the district.

CHAPTER II.—Burning Daylight starts on his trip to deliver the mail with dogs and sleds. He tells his friends that the big Yukon gold strike will soon be on, and he intends to be in it at the start. With Indian attendants and dogs he dips over the bank and down the frozen Yukon and in the gray light is gone.

CHAPTER III.—Harnish makes a sensationally rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the Tivoli and there has made a record against cold and exhaustion and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields.

CHAPTER IV.—Harnish decides where the gold will be found in the up-river district and buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold before the season is over.

CHAPTER V.—When Daylight arrives with his heavy outfit of flour he finds the big flat desolate. A comrade discovers gold and Harnish reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, begins investing in corner lots and staking other miners and becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike.

CHAPTER VI.—Harnish makes fortune after fortune. One lucky investment enables him to defeat a great combination of capitalists in a vast mining deal. He gives a farewell celebration to his friends that is remembered as a kind of blaze of glory.

CHAPTER VII.—The papers are full of "The King of the Klondike," and Daylight is feted by the money magnates of the country. They take him into a big copper deal and the Alaskan pioneer finds himself amid the bewildering complications of high finance.

CHAPTER VIII.

Back at his hotel, though nearly two in the morning, he found the reporters waiting to interview him. Next morning there were more. And thus, with blare of paper trumpet, was he received by New York. Once more, with beating of tom-toms and wild hulla-balloo, his picturesque figure strode across the printed sheet. The King of the Klondike, the hero of the Arctic, the thirty-million-dollar millionaire of the North, had come to New York. What had he come for? To trim the New Yorkers as he had trimmed the Tonopah crowd in Nevada?

They were prepared for him to play, and, when heavy buying of Ward Valley began, it was quickly decided that he was the operator. Financial gossip buzzed and hummed. He was after the Guggenhamers once more. The story of Ophir was told over again and sensationalized until even Daylight scarcely recognized it. Still, it was all grist to his mill. The stock gamblers were clearly befuddled. Each day he increased his buying, and so eager were the sellers that Ward Valley rose but slowly. A wildly exciting time was his during the week preceding Thursday the eighteenth. Not only was he gambling as he had never gambled before, but he was gambling at the biggest table in the world for stakes so large that even the case-hardened habitués of that table were compelled to sit up. In spite of the unlimited selling, his persistent buying compelled Ward Valley steadily to rise, and as Thursday approached, the situation became acute. Something had to smash. How much Ward Valley was this Klondike gambler going to buy? How much could he buy? What was the Ward Valley crowd doing all this time? Daylight appreciated interviews with them that appeared—interviews delightfully placid and non-committal. Leon Guggenhammer even hazarded the opinion that this Northland Croesus might possibly be making a mistake. But not that they cared, John Dowsett explained. "It is purely gambling from beginning to end," were Nathaniel Letton's words; "and we refuse to have anything to do with it or to take notice of it in any way."

During this time Daylight had several secret meetings with his partners—one with Leon Guggenhammer, one with John Dowsett, and two with Mr. Howison. Beyond congratulations, they really amounted to nothing; for, as he was informed, everything was going satisfactorily. But on Tuesday morning a rumor that was disconcerting came to Daylight's ears. It was also published in the Wall Street Journal, and it was to the effect, on apparently straight inside information, that on Thursday, when the directors of Ward Valley met, instead of the customary dividend being declared, an assessment would be levied. It was the first check Daylight had received. It came to him with a shock that if the thing were so he was a broken man. And it also came to him that all this colossal operating of his was being done on his own money. Dowsett, Guggenhammer and Letton were risking nothing. It was a panic, shortlived, it was true, but sharp enough while it lasted to make him remember Holdsworth and the brick-yard, and to impel him to cancel all buying orders while he rushed to a telephone.

"Nothing in it—only a rumor," came Leon Guggenhammer's throaty voice in the receiver. "As you know," said Nathaniel Letton, "I am one of the directors, and I should certainly be aware of it were such action contemplated." And John Dowsett: "I warned you against just such rumors. There is not an iota of truth in it—certainly not. I tell you on my honor as a gentleman."

Heartily ashamed of himself for his temporary loss of nerve, Daylight returned to his task. The cessation of buying had turned the Stock Exchange into a bedlam, and down all the line of stocks the bears were smashing. Ward Valley, as the apex, received the brunt of the shock, and was already beginning to tumble. Daylight calmly doubled his buying orders. And all through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning, he went on buying, while Ward Valley rose triumphantly higher. Still they sold, and still he bought, exceeding his power to buy many times over, when delivery was taken into account. What of that? On this day the double dividend would be declared, he assured himself. The pinch of delivery would be on the shorts. They would be making terms with him.

And then the thunderbolt struck. True to the rumor, Ward Valley levied the assessment. Daylight threw up his arms. He verified the report and quit. Not alone Ward Valley, but all securities were being hammered down by the triumphant bears. As for Ward Valley, Daylight did not even trouble to learn if it had fetched bottom or was still tumbling. Not stunned, not even bewildered, while Wall Street went mad, Daylight withdrew from the field to think it over. After a short conference with his brokers, he proceeded to his hotel, on the way picking up the evening papers and glancing at the head-lines. BURNING DAYLIGHT CLEANED OUT, he read; DAYLIGHT GETS HIS; ANOTHER WESTERNER FAILS TO FIND EASY MONEY.

He passed up to his rooms, ordered a Martini cocktail, took off his shoes, and sat down to think. After half an hour he roused himself to take the drink, and as he felt the liquor pass warmly through his body, his features relaxed into a slow, deliberate, yet genuine grin. He was laughing at himself.

"Buncoed, by gosh!" he muttered. Then the grin died away, and his face grew bleak and serious. Leaving out his interests in the several Western reclamation projects (which were still assessing heavily), he was a ruined man. But harder hit than this was his pride. He had been so easy,

They had gold-bricked him, and he had nothing to show for it. The simplest farmer would have had documents, while he had nothing but a gentleman's agreement, and a verbal one at that. Gentleman's agreement! He snorted over it. John Dowsett's voice, just as he had heard it in the telephone receiver, sounded in his ears the words, "On my honor as a gentleman." They were sneak-thieves and swindlers, that was what they were, and they had given him the double-cross. The newspapers were right. He had come to New York to be trimmed, and Messrs. Dowsett, Letton and Guggenhammer had done it. He was a little fish, and they had played with him ten days—ample time in which to swallow him, along with his eleven millions. Of course, they had been unloading on him all the time, and now they were buying Ward Valley back for a song ere the market righted itself.

And Daylight sat and consumed cocktails and saw back in his life to Alaska, and lived over the grim years in which he had battled for his eleven millions. For awhile murder ate at his heart, and wild ideas and sketchy plans of killing his betrayers flashed through his mind. Daylight unlocked his grip and took out his automatic pistol—a big Colt's .44. He released the safety catch with his thumb, and, operating the sliding outer barrel, ran the contents of the clip through the mechanism. The eight cartridges slid out in a stream. He refilled the clip, threw a cartridge into the chamber, and with the trigger at full cock, thrust up the safety catch. He shoved the weapon into the side pocket of his coat, ordered another Martini, and resumed his seat.

At ten o'clock he arose and pored over the city directory. Then he put on his shoes, took a cab, and departed into the night. Twice he changed cabs, and finally fetched up at the night office of a detective agency. He superintended the thing himself, laid down money in advance in profuse quantities, selected the six men he needed, and gave them their instructions. Never, for so simple a task, had they been so well paid; for to each in addition to office charges, he gave a five-hundred-dollar bill, with the promise of another if he succeeded. Some time next day, he was convinced, if not sooner, his three silent partners would come together. To each one two of his detectives were to be attached. Time and place was all he wanted to learn.

"Stop at nothing, boys," were his final instructions. "I must have this information. Whatever you do, whatever happens, I'll see you through."

Returning to his hotel, he changed cabs as before, went up to his room, and with one more cocktail for a nightcap, went to bed and to sleep. In the morning he dressed and shaved, ordered breakfast and the newspapers sent up, and waited. But he did not drink. By nine o'clock his telephone began to ring and the reports to come in. Nathaniel Letton was taking the train at Tarrytown. John Dowsett was coming down by the subway. Leon Guggenhammer had not stirred yet, though he was assuredly within. And in this fashion, with a map of the city spread out before him, Daylight followed the movements of his three men as they drew together. Nathaniel Letton was at his offices in the Mutual-Solander Building. Next arrived Guggenhammer. Dowsett was still in his own offices. But at eleven came the word that he also had arrived, and several minutes later Daylight was in a hired motor-car and speeding for the Mutual-Solander Building.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE VALUE OF DATES AS FOOD.

If children could be given dates, raisins and figs for sweets more often than candy, they would be much better in disposition and health.

Hutchenson says that a half pound of dates and a pint of milk makes a meal sufficiently nourishing for a person engaged in sedentary labor.

As a confection there is nothing more delicious than dates stuffed with nuts of any kind. A few dates added to the apple salad improves it very much.

A date put into a small ball of doughnut dough and fried is a pleasant change from the everyday doughnuts.

Dates added to the breakfast cereal is not new, but it is a decided improvement on the plain cereal.

The Arab can walk long distances and display the most wonderful endurance with a handful of dates and a piece of black bread for food.

For cake filling dates are exceptionally good. Take a half pound of dates, remove the stones and cut fine with a knife; add a third of a cup of boiling water and sugar to sweeten to taste, a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Cook in a double boiler until a smooth paste. Spread on layer cake and frost with orange icing.

A few dates put into cored apples and baked makes a common dish a creation. Lemon jelly molded, with dates and served on lettuce as a salad is a new and delightful combination for a salad.

Dates are added to cakes for the fruit, to bread of all kinds, and a pie made of dates is hard to equal.

A plain baking powder biscuit dough rolled rather thin and spread with butter, and a generous layer of chopped dates mixed with nuts, then rolled and baked will be either a hot cake to serve for tea or with a sauce. Will make a toothsome dessert.

A steamed suet or bread pudding with dates instead of raisins, or part of each will be a pleasant change.

A PAN-SLAVONIC POLITICAL MOVE

Foreign Voters Seek Control of Lake County

AN INDEPENDENT ASSOCIATION

With an Estimated Voting Strength of Not Less Than Ten Thousand, the So-Called "Hunky" Vote of Lake County is to Be Directed Toward the Election of Foreign-Born Officeholders in That Corner of the State.

Gary, Ind., Feb. 17.—The thousands of foreign voters in Lake county are planning to combine themselves into a formidable independent voting machine. It is intended that from now on the "hunky" voters shall have more to say in the selection of candidates, and that there shall be more foreign-born officeholders. There is even talk of capturing the Gary mayoralty at the next city election, and such a thing is not impossible, as the foreign vote is in the majority.

For more than a year some of the foreign leaders have been quietly at work, and they have carried out their campaign on a systematic basis. Every one of the estimated ten thousand foreign voters in Lake county carried a musket in the armies of Europe before they came to America. They have military discipline, and the matter of organization would be one of the least problems confronting the leaders.

It is also planned to establish a foreign newspaper in Lake county, which shall be independent, and which shall attack vice and graft. An All-Slavonian Political and Literary association is to be organized and a charter will be asked for in a few days from the secretary of state. Frank Zawadzki, one of the directors in the National Polish Alliance, and formerly a Chicago police lieutenant; Louis Gerkovich, president general of the National Serbian Alliance; Dr. John Pavelich, a Gary attorney, and formerly a member of the Austrian parliament and privy council to the emperor; John Keserik, and others, are leading the all-Slavonian movement.

RIPPER CLAIMS HIS SIXTEENTH VICTIM

Atlanta Again Horrified By Shocking Crime.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 17.—On the outskirts of the city the sixteenth victim of the mysterious "Jack the Ripper," whose bloody murders have terrified the black population of this city for months, was found. Alice Owen, a young mulatto, was the victim, and her body was discovered by a negro on the way to work. Her throat had been cut and her body mutilated by someone apparently skilled in the use of the knife. No clue to the ripper has been found, although the county and city officers are scouring this section of the country for the murderer.

In all the series of crimes there has been not more than half a dozen arrests, and all but one of the negroes have already been released. There have been queer features to a number of the murders. In one case a finger was taken away, and in another the heart was cut out. The officers believe the guilty man is a merdmaniac. The crimes cover a period of a little under one year's time.
